PARIS DESIGN WEEK 2025

HIS PARIS PRESENTS THE «VOYAGER, LA TERRE» EXHIBITION FROM 4 TO 13 SEPTEMBER 2025

For Paris Design Week, the Japanese concept store HIS Paris is transforming itself into a ceramics mecca, with a collective exhibition dedicated to artists working with ceramics. From 4 to 13 September 2025, HIS will be showcasing the art of ceramics in a unique programme that brings together expertise from several countries.

The 'Voyager, la terre' exhibition celebrates the profound relationship between the raw material (earth), the arts and cultures, testifying to the creative force of an age-old craft that is still growing. From a selection of rare objects to artworks signed by international artists, HIS has set itself the task of bringing together different cultural approaches, echoing Japanese ceramics, an ancestral skill that has become cult under the impetus of the Mingei movement.

French designer Goliath Dyèvre signed the curation and the scenography of this exhibition, which combines tradition and formal experimentation, and is all about materiality and texture. He brings together the localities, soils, shapes, colours and souls of the earth's craftsmen. In all, more than 150 traditional and contemporary creations come together in a holistic tour spread over two levels. 'This exhibition is about listening to the objects respond to each other,' says the designer and scenographer.

Conceived as a pop-up, this event gives emerging talents and established artists the opportunity to meet new audiences and visitors to acquire official creations, ranging from accessible pieces created by independent ceramists to numbered artworks available on demand. At the end of the exhibition, a selection of ceramics will remain on sale, providing HIS Paris with the opportunity to unveil a new space, specially designed to host cultural events in the worlds of fashion, design and contemporary art throughout the year.

Artists from all over the world

Supported by renowned publishers, the selection ranges from Asia (Japan, China, Cambodia) to South America (Mexico), Canada, Africa (Benin, Mauritius) and Europe (Poland, Sweden, France and Italy).

Ceramics from design expeditions organized by IDE / International Design Expeditions, a traveling program initiated by designer and interior architect Mathilde Bretillot, will be presented in the exhibition. South America is represented by artisanal creations from Maison Marcoux Mexico, specialists in Mexican craftsmanship.

On the Japanese side, ceramics come from the local HIS network, Maison Wabi Sabi, founded by Japanese ceramics expert Yann Touret and the Tokoname-yaki and Saito-yaki factories, represented by Kashiwa craft, which use two of the six oldest kilns in Japan.
